

Disclaimer

Unless otherwise expressly stated, The European Association of Agricultural Economists retains the rights to information presented on its websites and in its applications. This information includes texts, photo material and logos. Without the permission of The European Association of Agricultural Economists it is prohibited to reproduce, duplicate or make available in any way parts of the content of its websites.

We do our utmost to post correct and current information. However, certain information may not be fully accurate or current. If you are in doubt, please contact us.

To assist and further inform the visitor, references to sites that are not maintained by The European Association of Agricultural Economists have also been included. The European Association of Agricultural Economists is not answerable for the content and functioning of these sites nor for any offers that are made. The European Association of Agricultural Economists is also not responsible for how these sites treat personal information.

The terms and conditions of this disclaimer can be adjusted without prior notice. Changes are effective as soon as they are published on the website.

The European Association of Agricultural Economists (EAAE)